Social and Personal.

The most important society event of the week will be the marriage this afternoon at 5 o'clock of Miss Nancy Randolph Kennon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kennon, of Powhatan, and Thomas S. Moulton, Jr. of this city. The ceremony will take place at the end of the wide hall in "Norwood," the beautiful old home of the Kennons near Boswell, under a bell of golden rod, and the Rev. Martin Johnson will officiate. The entire house will be decorated with evergreen garlands and goldenrod and a big basket of yellow flowers will decorate the table in the dining room.

Mr. Kennon will give his daughter away. Her wedding gown is a lovely affair of heavy white satin, embroidered in wide ruffles and the bodice is trimmed in duchess lace caught up with pearls. Her long veil of illusion will be fastened with orange blossoms, and she will carry a presentation bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mrs. Julian Binford, Jr., will be her sister's dame of honor and Cecil Stevens will attend the groom as his best man. Mrs. Binford will wear a gown of yellow chiffon cloth, hand-embroidered, and will carry an armful of yellow roses.

Miss Mary Moulton, of Richmond, and Miss Beattie Overton Kennon, of "Norwood," will be maids of honor. Their gowns are of yellow satin made with overdresses of white voile, and they will carry bouquets of brown-eyed susans. Little Constance Wil-

Pretty Wedding. Another out-of-town wedding celebrated this week of interest to society here is that of Miss Margaret Ashton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Ashton, and Kenneth Gill Price, son of Judge James H. Price, of Magnolia, Miss. The ceremony took place last evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Methodist Church at Meadow View in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends. The Rev. J. W. Guy officiated.

The channel of the church was massed with ferns and palms and decorated with white roses and lighted candles, and Miss Jean Trigg, of Abingdon, sang a solo just before the bride and her attendants. F. J. Zeisberg played the wedding march.

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her away. She wore a gown of white satin charmeuse, festooned with orange blossoms and trimmed in duchess lace. Her tulle train was fastened with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Vivian Ashton, who was her sister's maid of honor, wore a gown of pale pink charmeuse and carried white roses. James H. Price, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man. Mrs. Maynard Adams, of Jackson, Miss., was matron of honor and wore a white lace and carried Killarney roses.

The bridesmaids included Misses Lucille Berrie, of Chattanooga; Emily Kennedy, of Knoxville; Theodosia Gray, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Nannie Byrd Trigg, of Abingdon; and Susan Brown, of Bristol. Their gowns were fashioned of white charmeuse and they carried bouquets of Killarney buds. The groomsmen wore Messrs. W. J. McKinley, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; B. F. Lampton, W. Wynne, Harry Love, Hudson Monroe McClung, Lewis Lazar, all of Mississippi. The ushers were J. C. Green, of Chattanooga; A. W. Ashton, of Abingdon; and W. E. Brown, Jr., of Bristol.

These dances will be continued through September, but only twice a week instead of three evenings. They will take place on Tuesday and Saturday evenings of each week, and any number of pretty dinners will be served on the terrace of the Century Club which precede these informal dances.

Back From North Carolina. Mrs. Herbert W. Jackson and her daughter, Miss Evelyn Jackson, have returned from Tarboro, N. C., where they attended the wedding of Mrs. Jackson's sister, Miss Lella Burt Phillips. Mrs. Jackson and her daughter returned to Richmond on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson have recently moved into their new home, 1115 West Franklin Street, where they are established for the winter months. Visiting Friends. Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. HIGH COST OF LIVING

Most Serious Problem of To-Day. Due Largely to Sickness. Read This Letter.

Clifton Mills, Ky.—That the high cost of living is due largely to sickness, especially among the women folk, no one can doubt, but in the following letter from Mrs. Sylvia Woods, of this place, it is brought more forcibly home to us. "Before I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, my back and head would hurt so bad, day and night, I thought the pain would kill me. I was unable to attend to any of my household duties. I had only taken three bottles of Cardui when I began to feel like a new woman. Within a few months I gained 35 pounds, and now I not only do all my own housework and washing, but most of the time run a big water mill, while my husband runs the farm. I wish every suffering woman would give Cardui a trial, for I am sure it would help them, as it has me."

At an expense of $3.00, for three bottles of Cardui, Mrs. Woods regained her health, and is now able to attend to the numerous duties which formerly she either had to hire done or neglect, thus increasing her cost of living.

Lady reader, are you suffering from any of the ailments so common to your sex? Wouldn't it be worth a few dollars to you to feel well enough to look after your daily work?

Try Cardui.

LAST BESTOWAL OF CROSSES OF HONOR

Interesting Exercises at Fredericksburg—Annual Fair Next Week.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Fredericksburg, Va., September 17.—

The last bestowal of crosses of honor by the Daughters of the Confederacy to the Confederate veterans, took place here to-day, and the occasion was a most interesting one. Mayor J. P. Rowe presided, and the principal address was delivered by Rev. R. J. McBryde, D. D. The following list of veterans and descendants were entitled to receive crosses: J. A. Billingsley, H. F. Berry, Mrs. Mary Chesley, J. P. Gayle, Miss Catesby Willis, Jenny Walker, Elliott T. Jett, J. F. China, C. H. Cox, Allen Freeman, F. H. Hill, Ennever Lucas, Fleming Lucas, J. H. Lewis, R. H. McGhee, Mrs. P. V. Daniel, H. T. Perego, W. H. Reynolds, J. F. Acors, D. J. Barton, Mrs. Lizzie Cox, Miss Mary C. Humphreys, Philip B. Lewis, Captain F. H. Revere, Robert S. Clarke, Alexander Dodd, Judson J. Embrey, Daniel McDaniel, J. P. Richards, George W. Price, Joe True, J. L. Wheeler, F. N. Berry, William J. Cox, Mrs. Mary Powers, Miss Ann V. Riley, Mrs. Sarah E. Knowles, Turner Robb, Mrs. William Taylor, F. W. Sanford, E. A. Almond, W. J. Hicks, P. C. R. O. Perry, J. P. Simpson, George H. Timberlake, S. D. Todd, Judge John T. Goorlick, Charles W. Edgington, E. T. Mastin, Jessie Stubbs, Mrs. Mary H. Gray. All of the above were not present, and the remainder of the crosses will be given out at the great reunion to be held at the Fredericksburg Fair next week on Thursday, September 26.

The Fredericksburg Fair will open Tuesday, September 24, and continue through the 28th. This fair was organized twenty-six years ago, and annually since then a successful fair has been held. It is a district fair, drawing from both the Tidewater section and the Piedmont country. The prospects were never better for a successful exhibition than they are at this time.

Entries have been coming in for some time and all the departments will be full. An unusual feature in connection with this fair is the great interest that is taken by the women. The women's department is the largest and fullest of any fair in the State, not excepting the State Fair. The entries last year in this department numbered nearly 2,000. It requires committees of judges, composed of women to the number of forty, to judge the articles and make the award of premiums. This department is under the supervision of Mr. A. P. Rowe, president of the fair. Weather conditions are favorable and it is expected that the record crowd will attend this year.

The public schools of this city will open next Monday, September 23. The first day resident pupils of last year will be registered, followed by the resident pupils who did not attend last year. The second day will be given over to non-residents who will have to pay tuition.

L. B. Dickerson has been appointed a member of the School Board of Chancellor District in Spotsylvania County, to succeed Scott T. Stephens, resigned, on account of ill health.

Roy W. Carter, a young attorney of Orange County, who was nominated as the regular Republican candidate for Congress from the Eighth District recently, has notified the congressional committee that he cannot accept the nomination on account of private business.

The big power plant in this city owned by the Gould interests is completed. Water has been turned into the forebay and the big flume of the company. Unless unexpected difficulties arise the plant will be in operation by October 1.

The Baptist Church of this city has unanimously adopted a resolution endorsing the candidacy of Elbert Biscoe, son of Councilman R. L. Biscoe, of this city, who is attending Richmond College for the Baptist ministry.

CARS TURN OVER BUT NONE INJURED

Richmond - Danville Train Is Wrecked at Tiffett's Crossing.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Danville, Va., September 17.—The Richmond-Danville train, No. 12, was wrecked this afternoon at Tiffett's Crossing when the mail and the express cars split a switch, detached themselves from the remainder of the train, and, after running along the ties, went over on their sides at the top of an embankment. Richard Smith, an express messenger, sustained a sprained ankle and severe bruises, but was able to be taken to his home after being treated by a physician.

The train was on time, and proceeding at low speed when the occupants of the cars felt them bouncing on the ties. The dancet car was pulled, but the train stopped too late to prevent the cars from turning over.

The express car struck a watch box, with Secor, the watchman, in it, and pulled it down the embankment. Curiously, the man sustained no injuries. A derrick has been summoned from Greensboro to lift the cars, but the main line is clear and regular traffic was not hindered.

BISHOP CARPENTER WILL VISIT AMERICA

Principal Spiritual Adviser of King George Reaches New York To-Day.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FONTENAY.

KING George's clerk of the closet and principal spiritual adviser, the Right Hon. Dr. William Boyd Carpenter, for more than a score of years Bishop of Ripon, and now Canon of Westminster Abbey, arrives in New York to-day from England on the Baltic, for a stay of some duration in this country, during the course of which he will visit the principal cities of the United States. He is a prelate of particularly small stature, but blessed with a remarkably musical voice, a sunny temperament, and a happy wit, which latter led him to explain to an old friend who commented on the demand for his services at the weddings of the great: "You see, it is because I am not only a Carpenter, but also a joiner."

The Clerk of the Closet was in pre-formation times the Father Confessor of the sovereign. But since the establishment of the present Church of England, the office has always been filled by a bishop. His duty subsequent to the Reformation and until the end of the eighteenth century, was to consist in saying grace before the sovereign's dinner and in attending him or her in the royal gallery or pew during divine service, occupying a place immediately behind the chair of the monarch, in order to resolve any doubts that might arise in his majesty's mind concerning spiritual matters. In the case of Charles II., all that the Clerk of the Closet was called upon to do was to arouse him from his slumbers at the close of the sermon.

The Clerk of the Closet towards the end of the reign of Queen Anne was a family friend, and, in 1702, he was promoted to the office of Bishop of Exeter. Foreseeing the change of sovereigns, and the accession of the Elector of Hanover to the throne of England, he applied himself with such success to the mastery of the German language that the new King retained him in office. Understanding no English, and being dreadfully bored by the length of the divine service, George used to talk in German uninterruptedly with the bishop from beginning to end. This indecorous conduct excited offense; so much so, as to call for the interference of the government, and Lord Townshend, who was one of the Secretaries of State, finding that all remonstrances were useless, took upon himself to send to the prelate a positive order to repair immediately to his Bishopric of Exeter, with a residence within the Abbey precincts, and a stipend of $5,000 a year.

Lord Rosemore, the appearance in London of whose book of reminiscences entitled "Things I Cannot Tell," occurred on the very day of the death of his octogenarian mother, the late Lady Rosemore, succeeded to the earldom through the tragic death of his elder brother, who was killed some thirty years ago, under the very eyes of Queen Victoria, by a crushing fall while riding for the Guards' Cup in the Windsor military steeplechase. The Queen was so shocked that at her request the coronation of the late queen was abandoned. During the following winter the present Lord Rosemore became the subject of a most impudent impersonation on the part of an extremely dashing and good-looking adventurer, who, assuming the name and title of Lord Rosemore, was received everywhere at Rome, welcomed with open arms by the late Sir Augustus and Lady Rosemore at the British Embassy, and presented to both King Humbert and Leo XIII. One evening there was a sensational exposure at the British Embassy, brought about by the presence at dinner there of a guest newly arrived from England that day, who had spent the previous week shooting with the real Lord Rosemore at the latter's place in County Monaghan, and who at once denounced the bogus peer as a fraud, when the latter was introduced to him.

Lord Rosemore, although a rabid Tory, is one of those Irish landlords who had the good sense to realize some years ago that there was room for improvement in the conditions governing the relations between landlord and tenant in Ireland. So "Derry," as he is nicknamed by his friends, severed his connection with the Orange Society, of which he had been one of the pillars, and became an enthusiastic supporter of Lord Dunraven's revolutionary scheme.

Rosemore Castle, his principal home in County Monaghan, commands a beautiful view of lake, of woodland, and of the Slieve Beagh mountains. It was known for many years as Mount Maria, and was in those days a convent. Then for a few centuries it was known as Cortlin Hill, and then it had its name changed for the third and last time to Rosemore Park.

to show his face again at court, or to presume to address the King. Dr. Younger, believing that the injunction proceeded from the sovereign, obeyed without remonstrance or delay; and Lord Townshend thereupon waiting upon George I., informed him that the bishop had received a kick from a horse, and which had fractured his skull, and to which he had succumbed.

George expressed the deepest concern at the bishop's death and never entertained the remotest idea of the deception practiced upon him, until a number of years afterwards, when Lord Townshend, having meanwhile retired from office, a royal review took place on Salisbury Plain. The attendance of the Bishop and Chapter of the Cathedral of Salisbury was demanded and George I. almost had a fit when he heard that the bishop had been kicked by a horse, and which had fractured his skull, and to which he had succumbed.
